

Deep Bodywork 1-year Foundation Training

Nov 2016 – Sep 2017: 24 days in 6 four-day blocks, Friday to Monday, starting 25th November 2016 in London.

The 1-year Foundation Training in Deep Bodywork provides an introduction to modern Reichian bodywork combining intensive personal experience with theoretical and practical training. This course is therefore suitable for both practitioners and non-practitioners alike.

For practitioners interested in bodywork and wishing to develop professional expertise in this area, for therapists in body or related disciplines and for practitioners in the helping professions this course can be a powerful supplementary training in process-oriented bodywork to enhance their current practice. It is an intensive process of transformation for all participants in their personal life and in their role as practitioners.

Equally, this foundation training can be taken as an intensive 1-year course just for personal growth and development.

Aims of the course

The primary goal of the foundation training is to train effective skills in contacting the bodymind and in encouraging awareness and aliveness in the body in a safe and respectful manner. These skills are useful for personal work and for professional work with others.

The secondary goal is to help students go deeper in their own process of change, development and transformation. There will be opportunity in the group context for work with individual issues.

Philosophy of the course

The training philosophy of this course is based on an integrative and holistic approach to personal development and therapy. It acknowledges each person's freedom and right to develop their potential as a human being - to become more fully individuated and self-actualized. Moreover, individual development and growth are seen as creative processes involving bodily, emotional, intellectual, psycho-sexual, interpersonal and spiritual levels of being. Deep Bodywork assists this maturation process.

Training Methods

The methods in the training combine experiential, theoretical and practical work into an integrated web which supports the student's learning process. Experiential sessions, theoretical presentations and discussions are interwoven with practical demonstrations, work in the group and in small groups.

Independent work between training sessions will be done individually and in small groups, and will include reading and written assignments as well as practical assignments. A training workbook and an experiential diary will be kept by participants.

Throughout the training, opportunities will be given for participants to work with individual issues. It is also expected that participants will continue their self-development outside the training including a period of individual therapy with an experienced practitioner.

In this manner theory is grounded in experience and practice, and experience can be integrated into developing intellectual clarity and emotional maturity.

Facilitation of the courses

The Deep Bodywork 1-year Foundation Training will be facilitated by Silke Ziehl.
